The Glorious Fourth!

Bellefonte Will Have a Rousing Time That Day.

Another meeting was held on Friday evening in the interest of the proposed fourth of July celebration. About fifty citizens and representatives of the various fire and military organizations in Bellefonte were assembled in the Arbitration room when Chairman Shaughensey called the meeting to order. After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, J. D. Sourbeck, chairman of the finance committee appointed to see whether the necessary finance could be raised, reported that there was already subscribed $417.50, and that he felt certain that within another week they could increase the amount to $600. This report was very satisfactory and at once gave assurance that the people want a big fourth of July and the persons having the matter in charge intend giving the people just what they want.

The next thing in order was the electing of a committee of arrangements to consist of the following:

John D. Sourbeck, chairman, and who will represent the citizens; Thomas Shaughensey, of the Logan Steam Fire Engine company; M. DeSylvia, of the Undine Hose company; John Knicely, of Company B., and Edwin F. Garman, of the Hook and Ladder company. Each man is empowered to associate with him two others of his company and then the whole to constitute one general committee of arrangements, and which, for better working, can be divided into as many sub-committees as deemed necessary. Another meeting will be held at nine o'clock Monday evening at which a programme will be arranged and the number of companies and what ones will be decided upon.

Of course we cannot today give the programme but we can assure our readers that it will be the most elaborate bill of fare ever served up to the people of this community in any one day. Fire companies will be invited from Altoona, Hollidaysburg, Tyrone, Philipsburg, Huntingdon, Lock Haven, Williamsport, Harrisburg, Sunbury, Milton, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre, Lewisburg and a score or two of other places; and military companies from all the neighboring counties. In addition it is the purpose to get up an industrial parade, if the merchants and business men of the town will take hold of this part of it. Of course there will be a fireman's parade, a military parade, probably an industrial parade, a score or more bands of music, a fire steamer contest in the afternoon, a champion game of base ball in the afternoon between the home team and the Philadelphia P. R. R. nine, and the grandest display of fire works ever put off in a Pennsylvania town. Of course to do all this it will require considerably more money and, therefore, when you are asked subscribe liberally.

The citizens and committee on arrangements on the fourth of July celebration met in the Arbitration room on Monday evening to hear reports and transact further business. The committee on finance reported $477.50 subscribed and $100.00 pledged. The chairman from each fire and military company handed in the names of the persons elected to constitute their respective committees and also the names of the various fire companies and military organizations they would like invited, which aggregated eight fire companies with bands, the infantry militia and the Sheridan Troop, of Tyrone. The following additional committees were appointed:

On decorations: Messrs. J. J. Gramley and Robert Hunter as chairman and assistant respectively; with the privilege of associating as many others with them as they desire.

Committee to inquire into whether the merchants will participate in an Industrial Parade: Edwin F. Garman, Geo. T. Bush, H. Holtz, David Woods and Robert McKnight.

Committee on invitations and printing: J. A. Fiedler, George T. Bush, Harry Jackson, Chas. Kurtz and C. L. Gates.

A motion to have a steamer prize contest was lost.

A motion was carried to invite all the civic organizations of the town and the principal ones throughout the county. Also the bands.

A committee was appointed to wait on General Hastings and request him to act as Chief Marshall on the fourth and report his answer next meeting night.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements with the railroad companies for special trains after which the meeting adjourned until next Friday evening unless called together sooner by the president.

They all got Mad.

The item in Friday's NEWS about the delivery of certain mail matter just more than raised the danders of the carriers and a couple of them felt inclined to lecture the NEWS editor. In this they displayed lack of judgement as it makes not the least bit of difference to us whether they make four deliveries a day or only one in a week. And as to the item in question, it was perfectly legitimate and published only after having repeatedly listened to complaints of that nature. And now we have just this to say, if it was not true why then made so much fuss? Evidently the shoe pinched and the squealing followed.

A New Swindle.

Veterans of the late war should keep their eyes open. There is a new swindler about. This time it is a canvasser pretending to be securing dates for a soldier's history. The questions asked are cheerfully and correctly answered by all. After the information has been written out, the unsuspecting informant is requested to sign it, being assured that it is only wanted as an authority for publishing. After a few days those interviewed are furnished with a $15 history, and are surprised to find their signature to take the book.

MANY years practice have given C, A Snow & Co., Solicitors of Patents, at Washington, D. C., unsurpassed success in obtaining patents for all classes of inventions. They make a specialty of rejected cases, and have secured the allowance of many patents that had been previously rejected. Their advertisement in another column will be of interest to inventors, patentees, manufacturers and all those who have anything to do with patents.

[Special correspondence DAILY NEWS.]

WASHINGTON, May 18, 1891.

The President has had time to do little else but accept the congratulations and answer the questions of his numerous callers since his return to Washington, but this week he expects to get down to business. Secretary Blaine will, unless prevented by sickness, consult with the President on the Behring sea situation, the latest phases of the Italian imbroglio and the Spanish reciprocity agreement. It is probable that Hon. J. W. Foster, the gentleman who so successfully negotiated the Spanish agreement will be invited to join the consultation as to that measure. Secretary Foster will, now that he has had time to familiarize himself with the finances of the Government, a task, by the way, at which he has worked about eighteen hours a day since he entered the Cabinet, have some important projects to present. Mr Harrison is perfectly delighted with his trip, and he looks decidedly better than when he went away.

Secretary Rusk, says of the trip: "It was a wonderful excursion, and every day of it was filled with pleasant happenings that must remain fixed in our memories. The great American public—the people—was enthusiastic from start to finish, and if the good folks on our route omitted any courtesy it would be more than I could do to discover the gap. Especially gratifying was our reception in the South. Every greeting was hearty in the extreme and beyond question honest. From the time we entered Tennessee the journey was an ovation, and on every side there was heard nothing but the broadest and most patriotic sentiments.

"Texas probably put on more paint than any southern state, and it is no exaggeration for me to state that the people went wild over the appearance of the President. California will always be remembered as the land of flowers. As soon as we entered the State we were bombarded with the most delicate blossoms, boquets were fired at us by the ton—and this continued until we got too far north for early flowers.

"But the feature of the trip that impressed me more even than the popular enthusiasm was the remarkable oratorical ability of the President. He made a greater number of first class speeches in a month than many high-grade public men could think and deliver in a lifetime. And his efforts were not at all prearranged and provided for. Some of the best things he said were spontaneous. He would be resting in his car when our train would pull up at a water-tank—we used a good deal of water—and a couple of thousand of people would surround the train and demand a speech. They knew from the railroad people that we were going to stop there, so they put up a job on the President. To such unexpected audiences the President's remarks were extremely happy. There wasn't a hitch in the arrangements nor an accident of even the most trivial description. It was a great trip but I am glad to be at work again.

Two classes of newspapers are making much of the resignation of Green B. Raum, Jr., of his position of assistant chief clerk of the Pension bureau, because that resignation was to a certain extent made under compulsion. The democratic papers have, of course, made the most of it, as it gave them an opportunity to attack the young man's father, Commissioner Raum, and through him the republican administration, and the purely sensational newspapers the jackals of the press, have seized upon the case with avidity, as they do upon everything that is tainted even the least little bit with human depravity, not caring how many innocent hearts may be broken as long as their column can be filled with something startling. The facts in this case are as follows: Young Raum got into bad company and began drinking and gambling. Secretary Noble sent for him several months ago and told him that he must turn over a new leaf, but the young man grew worse instead of better and finally got himself in the clutches of the money lending ten per-centers, and they abused his confidence, to their own profit, in the matter of one or two appointments. This came to the ears of Secretary Noble just before he went away, and he sent for Commissioner Raum, told him what he had heard, and that in the interest of the service his son must resign. Commissioner Raum fully agreed with the Secretary and within an hour the unfortunate young man's resignation was handed to the Secretary, and it has since been accepted to take effect thirty days from its date, and the young man given leave of absence until then. That's the whole story. Its simply the old, old story of the effect of whiskey and bad company.

The Goverment of China may not be able to tell in advance the good points of an American sent to them as minister, but it knows a good chance for advertising when it sees it, as it has just shown by requesting the Department of State to see that ample space was reserved for its exhibits at the coming World's Fair.

The Johnstown Flood.

The exercises arranged for the flood memorial day at Johnstown, in commemoration of that great disaster, will far exceed the observances of last year. The procession that will march to Graid View Cemetery will be composed of eleven bands, several military companies, several singing societies, and other civic organizations. Fully three thousand men will be in line. The services at Grand View Cemetery, where over 700 unknown dead are buried, will be very impressive. Orations will be delivered in English and German. The ministers of the city object to observing the anniversary on Sunday, and are trying to have Memorial Day, May 30, and the flood anniversary day combined.

High-Toned Sinners.

Rev. C. H. Woolson, of Philadelphia, is preaching a series of sermons on "The Ten Plagues of Philadelphia," in which he is giving some pretty hard hits at the high-toned sinners. On Sunday evening Mr. Woolson touched upon the "get-rich-quick" societies and the men who were backing them. He said that these men who had money and influence could rob the poor and live in style, undisturbed by the law.

"If a man robs a bank," he said, "he rides in his carriage; if he steals a railroad, he is respected as a shrewd man, but if a poor man steals a crust he goes to jail. If a man fails for $1,000 he is jumped on; if he fails for $200,000 he is looked up to. Moral: If you fail, fail rich. I once saw four policemen chase two boys for playing ball on Sunday, while all around them speak-easies were running in full blast."

—Boom the fourth of July celebration.

THE REASON WHY,

THE "OWL" FLAPPED ITS WINGS ON SATURDAY.

A number of years ago a publication known as the Owl flourished in Bellefonte for a few weeks and was then suppressed. It has now been revived and a new edition is being printed daily up town. Its one principal characteristic is that it prints nothing but slush and vituperation based entirely on fabrication without the least semblance of facts. On Saturday it printed a biography (?) of the NEWS editor and had it given its reason for so doing this article would never have been written but, under the circumstances, we are obliged to for once break over the rules of legitimate journalism and beg pardon of our many readers for this little digression.

The Owl screeched solely because Friday's NEWS contained a legitimate item, namely, the complaint against the way the free mail delivery is conducted. The complaint is a just and equitable one and can be sustained by one-third the population of Bellefonte. But in giving publicity to this complaint, the toes of the editor-in-chief of the Owl got tramped and then came the flopping. First came carrier Benner who, in language more emphatic than gentlemanly, demanded our authority for publishing the item and very generously offered us ten cents apiece for every man we would name that had made complaint. When we declined to be purchased so cheaply he flew into a towering rage and threatened what he would do, charge the NEWS a penny apiece for every paper delivered, and a lot other just such foolish assertions. Next came carrier Bayard who kindly offered suggestions as to the selection of proper news matter to fill our paper but as we were not then in need of such advice his offer was declined, with thanks.

Then on Saturday the Owl took the affair in charge but failed to state what the item was, etc., but confined itself to the publication of a lot of stuff that in no way whatever helped their cause nor affected the NEWS editor. Raised at Loveville the editor does not attempt to deny, nor that he graduated at the "Loveville University"—the common school, and at the early age of fourteen, and he is proud of the fact. But had he gone to school until eighteen, graduated from college, studied medicine, law and theology; worked on metropolitan papers for six or eight years and then had not risen above the low plane of journalism occupied by the Owl, he would feel so disgustingly small that he would be tempted to go out and hang himself, provided a thread small enough could be obtained. As to our work on the DAILY NEWS it speaks for itself and needs no eulogizing to carry it along. Our large and ever increasing subscription list speaks for itself.

The Owl spoke of an item which appeared in the Pittsburg Times, and which it credited the NEWS editor with writing. It did the same thing before and the fact was promptly contradicted and we challenge anyone to disprove our assertion. But can Fiedler say the same thing? Well we guess not. Shortly after he took charge of the post-office the NEWS printed a number of complimentary articles about his administration, and now we consider it no violation of confidence to say that all the articles in question were written by Fiedler himself; and not only written by him but were paid for by him at our regular rates, and then marked copies were sent to the post-office department to show how he was running the office—in his own mind. Now these are facts which can be substantiated in black and white. It makes not the least bit of difference to us, personally, how Mr. Fiedler runs the post office so long as it does not conflict with our interests, but as editor of a public newspaper it is our duty and intention to at all times fight for and protect the interests of the public in general.

And now, in conclusion, we will say that so far as retiring to the fields of agriculture, we have not the least intention of so doing, though we doubt not our success there would be as great as here and our more humble brethren would grow just as jealous of us in that capacity as the Owl is in the journalistic field in Bellefonte; but long after the entire force of the up town paper have descended into innocuous desuetude we shall continue to enlighten the people of Bellefonte and Centre county of all that transpires through the columns of the best inland daily ever published. HIS "FINER SENSIBILITIES"

The Editor in-Chief of the "Owl" Says His Little Say

As was expected the Owl editor said his say on Tuesday in about a column of stuff couched in his own elegant (?) and choice language so that it would not jar on his own "finer sensibilities" nor affect the modesty of his readers. The burden of his entire article was only a prolonged endeavor to prove to the public that the NEWS editor was not a millionaire—a most foolish and absurd thing for the reason that we make no pretense to being rich; but what little we have got was neither stolen from our relatives nor given to us by our father and father-in-law; given to us because they could not help it. What little we do have was gotten honestly.

The Owl speaks of being in possession of mythical letters which it refrains from publishing because of its "finer sensibilities." They are probably another batch of forged epistles similar to others which have emanated from that office—the place of their origin as well. And then Fiedler refrains from publishing them because of his "finer sensibilities." "Finer Sensibilities!" A man who has the notorious record that he has. With the remembrance of Bishop street, Sunbury, Snow Shoe, Shamokin, his own old home in Pennsvalley, his record at the Lock Haven State Normal, his gentlemanly conduct in Williamsport, and his very refined life since he has been a resident of Bellefonte. With the remembrance of all this he still talks of "finer sensibilities." Why the phrase is entirely foreign to his nature. He has not the least idea of the meaning of the words.

The Owl's article on Tuesday was entirely made up of bluff and banter woven together with language expressive of Fiedler's "finer sensibilities," and the whole thing was simply nothing more nor less than a reflex of his own character. The dirtiest ragamuffin on the streets is an adept in the use of course and vulgar language but he would readily stand aside for any of the Owl's editorial force. It requires very little brain to throw mud and write falsehoods, but where little is had what else can be expected. As to the writing of our own article we would say that never yet have we been obliged to borrow brains from any man and by the time the Owl editor is through with us he may have good cause to know that fact. In conclusion, we will add that our stock is in no way exhausted—we have not even lifted the lid of our supply box. The best daily paper in Centre county is the DAILY NEWS; subscribe for it.

PASSING.

Through the dark valley thou wilt past to-night;
To the drearer labyrinth of troubled years,
The fruitless sighs, the unavailing tears,
At last the end grows slowly into sight.
Death doth but wait for day's retreating light,
For that tranced hour when eve's first beacon peers,
And vespers gently falls on jaded ears,
To give thy soul the signal for its flight.
Then, with a brow unclouded as of old,
A heart no longer scathed by Sorrow's scars,
Out of Life's mists and vapors manifold,
Into that clime no shadow ever mars
Thou wilt emerge, and rapt communion hold
With the beloved, long gathered to the stars.

THREE TIMES A BRIDESMAID

BY HELEN FORREST GRAVES.

"Augusta Vivian! why, what on earth are you crying about?"

Miss Vivian dashed the crystal drops petulantly from her eyelashes.

"Crying! What nonsense. I'm not crying."

She sat there on the low, velvet covered divan, with the exquisite bridesmaid's dress in her lap—white tarletan, barred with shimmering lines of silver—while just beyond lay the wedding cards, tied together with snowy ribbon, like drifted snow.

And Aunt Bessie, seeing that remonstrance and argument would alike be unwelcome just at that moment, went quietly out of the room with the ivory needle case she had come to seek, leaving Augusta alone once more.

"Three times a bridesmaid and never a bride."

Was it, then, that there was actual truth in the words of the old saw which people quoted against her with so much malicious fun? For the third time she was to be a bride's attendant now—and herself! Why does no one come to lead her to the altar also, to fulfill a woman's sweetest, proudest destiny!

It is all sheer nonsense to say that a girl must not admit visions of love and matrimony into her head. She would be but a lifeless, loveless statue otherwise; the visions will come unbidden, and existence would be incomplete without their enchanting glitter. So it was with Augusta Vivian at eight and twenty. People were already beginning to speak of her as "an old maid;" the young, sixteen year old damsels thought her "shockingly old," and Lily, her married sister, with two babies, patronized and pitied her.

"Poor Gussie," said Mrs. Lathrop, "it isn't likely she will ever marry now. Why, I was engaged before I was 18, and Gussie is nearly 30. However, I always wanted an old maid sister to live with me and help about the children and the housekeeping."

Yet Augusta Vivian was lovelier now than she had been at eighteen. Not a wrinkle marred the marble smoothness of her brow, the gold bright hair waved in luxurious masses from her blue veined temples, and the bloom on her cheeks was red and ripe as that of a peach—and yet she never yet had had one offer.

It was hard, too. Augusta Vivian had all the wifely instincts belonging to every woman worthy of the name—she had her aspirations, hopes, and dreams, and it was dispiriting to see them blighted one by one.

"Nobody cares for me," thought Augusta mournfully, and not without a spice of bitterness in her dejection. "No man ever spoke to me of love—no home ever yet opened its portals to greet me as its queen. Why not, I wonder? Am I unlike other women? Am I unworthy of the destiny that fate has reserved for them? Here I live in my little cottage among the roses, solitary and alone, save for Aunt Bessie and the kitten, and here, for aught I can see, I am likely to drag out the monotonous series of my days. I wish I were a man. Men can go out into the world and forget all personal trouble in that keen hand to hand conflict which invigorates while it occupies them; but women can only sit at home with folded hands and aching hearts, waiting for the day to come which may never dawn."

And so it happened that Augusta Vivian had let a bright teardrop or two fall upon the shining folds of silver barred tarletan as she sat there all alone.

"Augusta," said Aunt Bessie, presently reentering and sitting herself down to work in the sunny corner of the bay window, "how old is your sister Helen?"

"Sixteen next month," answered Augusta spiritlessly.

"I thought so," said Aunt Bessie sagely. "Do you know, Augusta, I've got a new kink in my head!"

"What is that?" asked Augusta, forcing herself at least to appear to take some sort of interest in the subject under discussion.

"Major Culthorpe next door — don't you notice that he comes here every day?"

"He never speaks to me," said Augusta coldly.

"But he does to Helen! They were out an hour yesterday looking at the hyacinth beds. I do really believe he means something, Augusta. Helen is young, to be sure—only 16—and he must be more than 30."

"Thirty-one," said Augusta with a little sigh, so soft that it was scarcely perceptible.

"But he's very rich and very handsome—a great deal more brilliant match, in a worldly point of view, than Lily's husband. Helen couldn't do better than to accept him if he should happen to propose, and so I shall tell her."

Augusta dare not answer. Marrying and giving in marriage—how naturally they came to every girl but herself. Here was little Helen, wearing short dresses still, and scarcely out of the schoolroom, and Major Culthorpe, one in a thousand, handsome as Apollo, and polished as Chevalier Bayard, had already singled her out to be his wife! A keen pang of envy shot through Augusta Vivian's heart, none the less keen in that she felt how base it was thus to grudge the royal crown of wedded happiness to her young sister's lover.

"Helen is the last of the flock," added Aunt Bessie meditatively, "except you, is true I have sat up till after 12 on Sunday nights and begun then. Well, when Miss Lake went, Miss Sutton was left alone! the last leaf, as one might say, of that green table. There was nothing for her, poor soul, but patience; and she played Patience accordingly every night. When her turn came, as she expressed it, 'to cut out' she sent for me. It was only a few hours before her demise, and she'd already seen the clergyman. 'Mr. Newton,' said she, 'I knew you wanted to join our little party years ago, but it was not to be. Still, I feel you had a kindness for us. There are some good people in the world who make objections to our innocent game. I hope they may have nothing worse upon their own consciences to answer for than having played a quiet rubber. But I don't want to be a stumbling block. You need not therefore make public what I am about to ask you—at least, not until I am forgotten, which won't be long. Mr. Ashton and Mr. Groves lie at right angles to one another, as you well know, and dear Miss Lake opposite to Mr. Ashton; bury me opposite to Mr. Groves, so that I shall make up the old party!'

"I assure you, Master James, she said it so pitiful that I couldn't answer her for tears. I only nodded my head and looked mournful, like one of my hearse horses.

"Then she added, 'And if you don't think it would be wrong, Mr. Newton, I should like the two packs of cards we last played with—we always used to make them last three months, you know—put into my coffin. Would you mind seeing to that yourself?'

"Of course I said it should be done, and it was done with my own hands. There are some folks as would think it irreverent, though I have known the same people drop a toy into a child's coffin, with tears ready to break their hearts; yet, what are cards but toys, and we but children? Well, I buried the poor old lady just as she wished, and there they lie, all four of 'em."

We were standing by the place he indicated, and I noticed that one green grave which contained the whole party had been somewhat flattened at the top.

"That was your doing also, I suppose?" I inquired.

"Yes. No one has observed it but yourself; but I thought if I made it tabular it would look more like the real thing. It is a very quiet rubber!"

He Clapped His Man on the Back.

It was not a kind thing to do, but he was a young newspaper reporter and was, whether justly or unjustly, regarded as "fresh." His city editor sent him up to a meeting, and he started out a little too eagerly, for he got the address wrong. He was not so familiar with New York as reporters generally are, and by the time he got the address straightened out and found the correct one the meeting was over and he looked only upon closed doors.

On the elevated train he met three other reporters going down to their offices, and he told them his dilemma.

"Oh, it's lucky you got on this train," said one brother newsgatherer. "The very man you want to see is on this train. There he sits down there in the cross seat—the old man with the umbrella and the gray beard."

"And he's a peculiar old chap," said a second man. "You have to know how to treat him. He's the president of the society, you know."

"You want to be diplomatic," put in the third conspirator. "You've got to let him see that you know him. You want to come up behind him, clap him on the back—a good, rousing whack, you know—and say, 'Hello, Jenkins, old boy, how did the little shindy come off to-night?' Then he'll think he knows you and will tell you the whole story."

"Be sure you crack him on the back," was repeated.

"Oh, trust me," said the young reporter with a confident smile. Down the aisle he went, and reaching the "president" he gave him a terrific thump on the back. For one second there was an awful calm. Then "Jenkins, old boy," raised his umbrella and started for the offender. It was a chase for the door, the young man yelling out his apologies, the old man frantically brandishing his umbrella and making violent whacks at the head of his assailant. The younger man reached the door in advance, however, and darting through it slammed it in the old man's face. As the wrathful old gentleman was returning to his seat, red and panting, three young men without consciences were letting out howls of laughter.

The barber drew his fingers gently across the face of his victim and said:

"You have a strong beard, sir."

There was no reply. He caressed the silky locks and queried:

"Have a shampoo, sir? Your head really needs it."

The stillness remained unbroken.

"Shall I wax your mustache, sir?"

No reply.

"Seafoam, sir?"

The man in the chair drew a small tablet from his pocket and wrote on it:

"I am deaf and dumb."

On the wall beside the mirror hung a large "No Credit" card. The barber turned it and pointed to the motto on the reverse side. The inscription was this:

"Deaf and Dumb Men Double Price."

"No shampoo, no wax, no seafoam!" said the disgusted man in the chair suddenly finding a voice.

"All right, sir," rejoined the barber. "Thought I'd fetch you round. Fine day, isn't it?"—[Chicago Tribune.

STAR BLOSSOMS.

"I have given up eating candy during Lent," one little miss was overheard saying to another in West Fifty-seventh street. "Have you?" was the response in a tone of mingled surprise and admiration. "And you love sweet things so much. It must be very hard to deny yourself candy." "Yes, it is hard," said the first little miss earnestly, "and I couldn't stand it, only that mamma lets me have all the lump sugar I want."—[New York Times.

SUBJECTS FOR THOUGHT.

There is value in experiment.

Love is mutual understanding.

The reward of one duty done is the power to fulfil another.

Magnanimity owes no account to prudence of its motives.

General tidiness not only pays on its own account, but because to be tidy is to be economical.

If everybody knew what one said of another, there would not be four friends left in the world.

There probably never was a man so good that he did not hope in his heart that his successor would be a failure.

To be always intending to lead a new life, but never to find time to set about it, is as if a man should put off eating and drinking from one day to another, till he is starved and destroyed.

Some people scorn to be taught, others are ashamed of it, as they would be of going to school when they are old; but it is never too late to learn what it is always necessary to know. And it is no shame to learn so long as we are ignorant—that is to say, so long as we live.

Punishment is fruit that, unsuspected, ripens within the flower of the pleasure which concealed it. Cause and effect, means and end, seed and fruit can not be severed, for the effect already blooms in the cause, the end preexists in the means, the fruit in the seed.

Every individual owes obedience to something, and there can be no obedience without authority. Indeed freedom, rightly understood, imposes the most solemn obligations of all. When no human control binds a man, he is bound with the greater stress to obey the right, to bow to the authority of conscience, to live up to his highest ideal.

Of no use are the men who study to do exactly as was done before, who can never understand that to-day is a new day. We want men of original action, who can open their eyes wider than to a nationality, namely, to considerations of benefit to the human race, can act in the interest of civilization; men of elastic, men of moral mind, who can live in the moment and take a step forward.

There are things that could never grow familiar. Daybreak is one. There is always mystery about it. It is like coming to life again after death. You have been away you don't know where, and you come back again to the world, and when you find it as it is now, belonging almost to yourself, all the other people as good as out of it, it is very strange. No, I am not afraid of becoming too familiar with beautiful things.

There has been so much justly said about the prejudicial effects of overwork, especially in using up the powers of man and cutting short his life, that it may be hastily assumed by some that work itself is opposed to length of days. This, however, is a fatal mistake. Whatever may be proved concerning the comparative tendencies of different employments to shorten life, it will always be found that a life of idleness will surpass them all. The faculties of man, used and not abused, serve not only to benefit the world, but even more to benefit himself. His health, happiness, and length of life depend largely upon the regular, steady, and full—not excessive—employment of his powers. He who neglects this law, and suffers them to run to waste, leading an aimless and vacant life, will reap the penalty quite as much in his own inferior condition, physical and mental, as in any external loss he may sustain.

WIT AND WISDOM.

Money made by chance will go with certainty.

Happiness can always be found in a dictionary.

Worrying is mental cowardice in almost every one except yourself.

DEATH HAS NO STING.

He was so very ugly, this
Extraordinary man,
That when in battle he faced death
Death turned away and ran.
—[New York Herald.

Justice is a little shortsighted, perhaps, but it frequently has an eye to the main chance.

Lying is the basis of all evil. After one year of absolute truth all crime would disappear.

One-half of real heroism consists of bravery, and the other half consists of not talking about it.

A man thinks it very easy to save the world until he has tried to save the man next door.—[Atchison Globe.

Grief is not to be measured by the tears shed, nor does the loudest mourner always deserve the largest bequest.

A man never gets so bad but that he likes to hear somebody say there is still some good in him.—[Ram's Horn.

Cheerful Christianity the Best.—A Christian with a long face is one of the best advertisements the devil has on earth.—[Ram's Horn.

SOUND IS NAUGHT BUT AIR.

Sound is naught but air that's broken,
And every speech that is spoken,
Whe'er low or loud, foul or fair,
In his substance is but air.
—[Chaucer.

Lord Anglo—We believe in marrying for love in Europe. Miss Maud—Ah, yes. And you come to America when you wish to marry for money.—[New York Herald.

They were talking about trees. "My favorite tree," she said, "is the oak. It is so noble, so magnificent in its strength. But what is your favorite?" "Yew," he replied.—[Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Case of Sympathy.—"See that man over there?" "Yes." "He was worth a million once." "Poor fellow. How did he lose it?" "He didn't. He has five millions now."—[New York Sun.

And She Named the Day.—He (awkwardly)—Ah, Miss Mabel, hope you understand my feelings? She—I'm sure I'm quite in the dark. He—Then (desperately) suppose we strike a match.

The New Version.—Teacher—What was the fate of Lot's wife? Scholar—She was turned into salt. Teacher—What for? Scholar—For looking back to see if the woman who had just passed her had on a sealskin or a plush sacque.—[Judge.

THE PALLID WREATH.

Somehow I can not let it go yet, funereal though it is,
Let it remain back there on its nail suspended.
With pink, blue, yellow, all blanch'd, and the white now gray and ashy,
One wither'd rose put years ago for thee, dear friend,
But I do not forget thee. Hast thou then faded?
Is the odor exhaled? Are the colors, vitalities, dead?
No, while memories subtly play—the past vivid as ever;
For but last night I woke, and in that spectral ring saw thee,
Thy smile, eyes, face, calm, silent, loving as ever;
So let the wreath hang still awhile within my eye-reach,
It is not yet dead to me, nor even pallid.
—[Walt Whitman.

JULIET'S TOMB.

BY J. F. M.

The greater number of English speaking people who visit Verona associate the town with the tragic fate of the fair daughter of the Capuletti. Surrounded by the vast and rugged battlements of the Alps, intersected by the broad blue waters of the Adige rushing under old Roman arched bridges, its narrow, sun baked streets overlooked by mediæval buildings and houses with facades, its cathedral with cloisters six centuries old, its churches surmounted by quaint shaped towers, its gardens planted with stately and venerable cypresses, Verona seems a fitting scene for what is, in sooth, the saddest love story of which mankind has heard.

That the tale was founded on fact we learn from Girolamo de la Corte's history of Verona. The romance writers of Italy speedily laid hands on the tragedy as a fitting theme for their pens; and a poetic version of the story by one Arthur Brooke was first published in England in 1562, entitled "The Tragicall Historie of Romeus and Juliet, Contayning in it a rare Example of true Constancie; with the subtill Counsels and practices of an old Fryer and their ill Event." Some five and thirty years later was printed William Shakespeare's play, which has fixed the fate of the Veronese lovers forever in the world's memory.

Guides are anxious to show strangers the house, now known as the Palazzo Sambonifazi, in which Juliet lived, and the balcony which Romeo scaled close upon 500 years ago. The building has nothing remarkable in its appearance; its walls are discolored by time, its stucco work crumbling from age, no air of romance distinguishing it from its neighbors. To reach it one must pass through the Piazzo delle Erbe, once the Forum of the republic, now the fruit and vegetable market. The square, surrounded by palaces and houses decorated with frescoes by Cavalli, is much as it was when it ran red with blood during the fierce fights which took place between the Guelphs and the Ghibellines—families who for long "rendered Italy savage and unmanageable." To-day it is peaceful enough, and is full of light and color. Under the shade of huge umbrellas—red, blue, green, and orange—are stalls piled high with melons and pomegranates, fresh gathered figs and apples; beneath the striped awnings of portable shops wearing apparel of gaudy hues flame in the bright sunlight; here and there sacred pictures, crucifixes, and statues are exposed for sale; the shrill voice of a basket vender stationed near the Tribuna, the ancient seat of judgment rises above the general hum; and close by a fountain, trickling over its marble front and adorned by a statue of Verona, is a noisy crowd, largely composed of soldiers in blue uniforms, thronging round a young, comely woman of the gypsy type, standing on a chair, who with many words and much assurance invites all interested in their future to take a card from the pack she holds, by which and for the trifling sum of a penny she will reveal the gifts Fortune holds in store for them.

Passing the Roman amphitheater, still in excellent repair, now given over to exhibitions of rope-dancing and displays of fireworks, the visitor takes his way by yellow-walled streets, through which Dante may have walked what time he sought refuge in Verona on his banishment from Florence, until, passing outside one of the ancient gates, a suppressed Franciscan monastery, surrounded by high walls and a fair garden, is reached. Above the entrance is a sign board bearing in crude letters the words "Juliet's Tomb." I expected to find underneath "Admission half a franc," but, instead, saw the proprietor's name. Ringing at the gate, it was speedily opened by a rough looking laborer, who smiled graciously at the prospect of receiving a fee. With an air of pride he pointed to the cabbages growing in his garden, saying his vegetables were the finest in all Verona, for the ground from which they sprang had been for full 500 years the burial place of monks.

The church is closed, like so many others all over Italy, waiting to be let or to be sold as a corn store, wine vault, stable, or factory. But one of its small chapels, bricked up and cut off from the larger building, is approached by a garden path, and here is a red marble sarcophagus, called the tomb of Juliet. The chapel, little larger than a recess, is chill and bare, the whitewashed walls are discolored and damp, decorated by faded laurel wreaths, and half covered by visiting cards nailed on its surface. The tomb is likewise half full of cards; for visitors, being unable, because of the red stone, to gratify the desire, which so strangely stirs them on seeing famous shrines and historic places, of writing their names, have had to satisfy their vulgar vanity and foolish egotism by leaving cards as records of their visits. Here you may read the names of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Bayswater; Mrs. J. William Johnson, Chicago; Mr. B. Hercules Thompson, New York city; Miss Jemima Browne, Putney, etc.

It struck me the tomb, highly polished and smooth, looked suspiciously new; and I then remembered that more than 60 years ago Byron described it in a letter to Moore as "a plain, open, and partly decayed sarcophagus with withered leaves in it, in a wild and desolate conventional garden." And, moreover, I had heard it was then the fashion to chip away fragments of the stone, which, having been set as brooches and bracelets, were worn by ladies who posed as sentimentalists. The inference was plain: The so called tomb was a deception and a snare.

Therefore, when the guide rolled out his hackneyed sentences about this being the last resting place of the noble lady Juliet, I frankly told him I had no faith in what he said. An awful pause ensued, during which he looked at me with an expression of horror and amazement, as if his ears had been profaned. But, quickly recovering himself, he replied: "Signor, what I say is a fact, I assure you; the lady was placed after death in this very tomb."

"How do you know?" I asked.

He shrugged his shoulders in pity, threw up his hands in protest, and elevated his black brows in wonder at my audacity. "Hundreds come here yearly," he remarked, resolving to strangle in its birth a doubt that if allowed to flourish might seriously interfere with his income; "they come from England and from America to see this tomb, and they have no doubts, signor; for it is really and truly, as everyone in Verona will tell you, the resting place of the ill fated Juliet."

I contented myself with shaking my head, and he remained silent, until suddenly his face flushed with brightness, and I saw that a new idea had dawned on him. "Signor," he said gravely but firmly, "I will prove to you it is Juliet's tomb; for here," he added, turning triumphantly to a picture of a monk, painted at a comparatively recent period, which hung on a side wall, "is the portrait of Friar Laurence, who married the lady and her lover, and gave her the poison."

He expected this remarkable example of logic would surely silence me; nor was he disappointed. Without another word I left the spot, and the proprietor of Juliet's tomb received my silver coin with the virtuous air of a man who had let light shine upon the benighted.

WONDERS IN BONES.

Some Curious Facts in Osseous Structure Little Dreamed Of.

Exhibited in a glass case at the National Museum there is a bone—a human tibia—tied in a knot. It has been rendered thus flexible by soaking it in acid, which has dissolved out of it all its mineral parts, leaving only the animal portion. This portion makes about one-third of the bone, which fact might surprise some people who suppose that their bones are almost wholly lime.

"There are funny things about bones other than funny bones," said an osteologist connected with the Smithsonian Institution to a writer for the Star. "For example, the bones of birds are hollow and filled with warm air from the lungs, so it may be said that a bird breathes down to its very toes and to the tips of its wings. In fact, if you break off the wing of a duck the animal can actually breathe through the broken end of the bone, though you hold its head under water. Some of the gigantic reptiles of the mesozoic epoch, which some scientists claim to have been the ancestors of man, had hollow bones similarly filled with air from the lungs, for the support of their bodies in the water while they browsed upon seaweeds near shore, their massive and solid leg bones serving them as anchors, in a depth about sufficient to cover their backs.

"People continually imagine that their bones are of solid mineral construction without any feeling in them. No one who has ever had a leg or an arm cut off is likely to indulge such a mistaken notion. Comparatively speaking, little pain is felt when the flesh is being cut through, but when the bone is attacked by the saw, oh, my!

"You see, as a matter of fact, there are blood vessels and nerves inside the bones, just as there are outside. Any one who has purchased a beefsteak at the market knows about the marrow in the bone. It is the same with other animals than the beef, including human beings. Through the marrow run the nerves and blood vessels, entering the bones from the flesh without by little holes, which you can see for yourself any time by examining a skeleton or part of one. When the disease called rheumatism, which no physician understands, affects the nerves within the bones no way has been discovered for treating it successfully. It does not do to smile when a person says that he feels a thing in his bones.

"Nature adapts the bony structure of various animals to their habits in a very interesting manner. Sluggish creatures like the sloth have solid bones, whereas the bones of the deer and the antelope are comparatively light, so that they may run fast, and the leg bones of the ostrich are hollow. You will find in the bones of any skeleton the application of mechanical principles which have only become known to man through the processes of laborious and long considered invention. In your own shoulder you have a most beautiful and perfect illustration of the "ball and socket joint," while at your elbow there is a combination of the hinge and ball and socket which in its way surpasses anything that human invention has been able to accomplish thus far. But these are simple things compared with the hands, the bones of which exhibit the most perfect and complete apparatus, in its adaptation to the purposes for which it is intended, that has ever been imagined. How is it possible for any one who has studied the structure of his own hand to say that there is no God?"—[Washington Star.

Men die, but sorrow never dies;
The crowding years divide in vain,
And the wide world is knit with ties
Of common brotherhood in pain.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

There are in the United States, Canada, England, and Scotland, 35 women's missionary societies, and they have 1,397 missionaries in the field.

The North Africa Mission has in all 58 missionaries engaged in its field of operations, embracing Morocco, Algeria, Tunis, Tripoli, and north Arabia.

The committee to revise the articles of faith of the Methodist Protestant Church has completed the work of revision, and the report will be presented to the annual conference for approval.

The "Brotherhood on the Sea" is the name of a new society of 200 Norwegian sea captains, who have pledged themselves to have regular religious services on board their ships, and to conduct everything there and on shore in the fear of God.

Under Russian government, it is stated, looks upon the movement of the Salvation Army with great disfavor. It seems that the army has done much successful work in different parts of Russia, principally in Finland, and that it has even dared to enter St. Petersburg. Energetic measures are to be taken, it is understood, against the Army.

The necessity of using common sense in exercising generosity is emphasized by the little paper called Church Work, which states that the native women of India have rebelled against wearing the articles sent to them last year from New York. The list of rejected things includes "2,000 pairs of corsets, 700 pairs of rubber garters, and 3,500 dresses ribbed with whalebone and steel."—[Christian Register.

Benn Pitman, of Cincinnati, believes that he is the only person in this country who has shaken a hand that shook the hand of the great Wesley. "The poet Crabbe," he says, "who was the rector of the parish in which I was born, who christened me, and whose funeral I attended in my boyhood, was introduced to Wesley in his old age, and in the biography of the poet, it is said, he was received by Wesley with "benovolent politeness."

October 2, 1792, the Baptist Missionary Society was organized, the first society in the world organized exclusively for sending the gospel to the heathen. The first offering amounted to about $66. Now there are 223 evangelical missionary societies, 5,594 foreign missionaries (over 3,000 of whom are ordained ministers), 33,543 native helpers, 681,503 native communicants, and in 1890 the contributions reached $11,429,588.—[Missionary Review.

Jewish influence in America is on the increase. The Hebrew population of New York is already sufficient to make a large city. The contribution of $2,400,000 made by Baron Hirsch to be used for the education and improvement and assistance of the Jews in this city will stimulate immigration among this class. Russian persecution, which is driving the children of Jacob out of that country, will continue to send multitudes of them to these shores.—[New York Christian Advocate.

We have commented several times of late upon the wonderful growth of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States. "Whittaker's Church Almanac" for 1891 contains additional information. The increase of communicants in the last decade was 47½ per cent, just double the increase of population. The increase last year was 8½ per cent. In 1840 there were but 55,427 communicants in the United States, with a population of 17,069,500; now there are 54,949 in Pennsylvania alone, with a population of 5,248,574.—[Toronto Evangelical Churchman.

The official "Year Book of the Church of England" has lately been issued. During the last five years the voluntary offerings of the people for church building and restoration amounted to nearly $25,000,000. During the same period the sums contributed for the endowment of benefices amounted to nearly $3,250,000. For the building of parsonage houses $2,250,000 has been raised; and for burial grounds, $470,000. In other words, the voluntary contributions of the Church for five years aggregate nearly $32,000,000. This does not include the money given for the annual maintenance of church work at home and abroad, which would very largely swell the sum total.

PERSONAL AND PERTINENT.

Mrs. Evaline Neal, who has turned up in Paris with 43 husbands, seems to be proceeding more or less with a view to making a record.

General Pacheco, Mexican minister of public works, resigns his post to establish an industrial colony at Motzorongo, where he will teach Mexican boys to raise sugar. An American boy does not require any special training in the business of raising sugar.

Sir John comes high, but the people of Canada must have him. The debt of the Dominion is now $290,000,000, and ten or a dozen millions are being added each year. The population has ceased to grow and taxation increases year by year. It will probably not be long until Sir John will be kissing his hand across the border and begging to be annexed.

William Watts, of De Kalb, Tex., rose from bed the other morning and said to his wife, as Othello said to Desdemona, that if she knew of any crime of hers unreconciled to heaven and grace it would be a good scheme to solicit pardon for it at once, as he intended to kill her as soon as he had put on his shoes. Mrs. Watts is not a praying woman nor a meek one, and not wishing to die just at that time she slid out of the other side of the bed, brought in an axe from the yard, and while Mr. Watts was putting the finishing touches on his shoe laces knocked out his brains with it. The modern Desdemona is certainly a very practical woman.

COUNCIL'S DOINGS.

THE BOROUGH DADS TRANSACT CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS.

Council was called to order by President Potter with six members present. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

Messrs. S. D. Ray and L. A. Schaeffer were present to request permission to open an alley through property owned by them south of Logan street. Street committee and borough engineer were appointed to examine the locality and report at next meeting, when, if practicable, an ordinance will be passed declaring it open.

Messrs. John Wagner and Robert Ray asked for the erection of a boardwalk on Spring street from Curtin street out beyond Beaver street. Street committee and borough engineer instructed to examine and report at next meeting.

Annie Miller presented a written request for an exoneration of taxes. Referred to Finance committee with power to act.

Water committee had no report to make.

Fire and Police committee reported progress, and asked that the entrance to the hose house be repaired. Ordered to be repaired by Street committee.

Market committee reported the market in operation but no strawberries being brought in.

Nuisance committee reported all nuisances abated and everything in good condition.

The report of the street committee on boardwalks was read. The report was too long for publication as it included about all the boardwalks in Bellefonte.

The committee recommended an arc light to be placed on the East end of Linn street, a very much needed improvement. The report was accepted as read and council ordered that notices be served on all parties that they would be given until June 10th to make the necessary repairs.

President Potter told of a couple nuisances that existed and instructed the Street committee to look after the same. He also asked council to consider, until the next meeting night, the advisability of employing an additional night watchman. Clerk Mitchell stated that the board appointed to assess the water tax had, with a view to better equalization, assessed it per head and also per room, and between the two total amounts there were only 30 cents difference. The only question at issue is the legality of assessing per room and which of the two ways above mentioned would be the best. Mr. Longacre said the police wanted their summer uniforms and on inquiring of the Chief Burgess he learned that he had no money to purchase same, as all fines, etc., thus far collected he has, by order of the President, paid over to the school board. This was a somewhat unexpected emergency, as that money has in the past been devoted to uniforming the police, etc. The matter will be referred to the borough solicitor.

A number of bills were read and approved after which council adjourned.

Two Beautiful Young Girls.

Newport is to have a sensation this summer.

It is authentically stated that the beautiful and celebrated daughters of Lord Dufferin, Beatrice and Adelaide, are to grace this famous resort with their presence this coming season.

It will be remembered that Beatrice's beautiful dark eyes have played havoc lately with the heart of Albert, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales. What it will amount to is as yet a matter of conjecture in England. The young ladies are acknowledged to be the most beautiful in all Europe, and there will be not a little excitement in the hearts of our American belles over their coming. They are exqu site dressers, and their costumes will be marvels of curiosity. Unlike most ladies, they know exactly what is suited to them. Some time ago they sent for the chief designer of the Paris house of "The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar," and selected forty costumes each, the cost of which will amount to thousands of pounds.

Through the courtesy of these young ladies we have been permitted to c py for "The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar" two of their most exquisite costumes, which appear as figures 3 and 4 on the colored plates of the June number of this magazine, just out, and for which the publisher has issued, in the name of the American ladies, a card of thanks. It is rumored that the prince may follow the young ladies to Newport this summer. "The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar" has exclusive right to publish each month at least one or more of the costumes in which the ladies Beatrice and Adelaide will appear.

Pennsylvania State Grange. Patrons of Husbandry

CENTRE HALL, PA., MAY 12, 1891.

To the Patrons of Husbandry of Pennsylvania:

Pursuant to resolution adopted by the National Grange, the Worthy Master of that body has, by proclamation, set apart the 6th day of June, 1891, as Children's Day, and in conformity with the desire that all Granges of the land may observe the same day, I hereby select the 6th day of June as Children's Day in Pennsylvania, and trust that all good Patrons will so observe it as to make it also a feast day for the Court of Flora. Let this day be made memorable by gathering flowers and decorating our Grange halls, so as to make them enchanted gardens. Hold meetings for the young people, and let the hours be occupied in recitations, songs and instrumental music, and a banquet for the children. I trust Patrons will lay aside all work on that day, and strive to make it memorable in our Grange history.

Fraternally,

LEONARD RHONE,
Master State Grange Pennsylvania.

Attest:

R. H. THOMAS,

Through the Weary Hours

Of many a night, made doubly long by its protracted agony, the rheumatic sufferer tosses to and fro on his sleepless couch, vainly praying for that rest which only comes dy fits and starts. His malady is one which ordinary medicines too often fail to relieve, but there is ample evidence to prove that the efficient blood depurent, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, affords the rheumatic a reliable means of relief. Check the malady in its incipient stages, when the first premonitary twinges come on, with this agreeable medicine, and avoid years of torture. Whatever be the rational of active influence of the Bitters upon this malady, certain it is that no evidence relating to its effect is more direct and positive than that which relates to its action in case of rheumatism. Like all sterling remedies, however, it deserves a protracted, systematic trial, and should not be abandoned because not at once remedial. It is equally efficacious in dyspepsia, indigestion and kindred diseases.

Fishing With Nets.

Are local fisherman aware of the fact that there are only three kinds of fish which the law allows to be caught in nets? They are catfish, suckers and eels. Any man catching anyother kind of fish at any season of the year is subject to prosecution, fine and imprisonment. Word has lately been received by the authorities in this place that two men not far from Bellefonte have been guilty of catching trout with nets. The men are now being watched and another act of that kind will be dear fish to them.

Sanitary Bureau, New York City.

Dr. Cyrus Edson of the New York Health Department prescribes Speer's Port Grape Wine in his practice as the purest and most reliable wine to be had and his opinion is endorsed by his associates as will be seen from the following letter:

New York, December 9, 1887.
The Speer N. J Wine Co.,
Gentlemen:

Having used your Port Wine to a large extent in my family in cases of sickness and found it to be all that was recommended of it by my family physician, I desire to purchase it by the dozen bottles.

Respectfully yours,
JAMES BRYAN,

Peterson's Magazine continues to increase in popularity. The June number is a capital specimen of its general excellence and the great improvements made at the beginning of the year. To the ladies "Peterson" is of special importance at this season when the thought necessarily uppermost in every woman's mind is "What to wear and How to Wear it." These are questions which "Peterson" answers in the most simple and satisfactory manner. The beautiful double fashion plates give the newest Parisian toilettes, but give also designs of the freshest novelties in American costumes. Peterson evidently agrees with Mrs. Cleveland and other prominent society leaders in their determination to make American styles and fabrics disp te the palm with those of France. The magazine caters also in ever possible way to the needs of housekeepers and home-makers. In point of literary attractions and illustrations it compares favorably with the highest priced periodicals. A new volume begins with the July number, try it for the next six months. Terms, $2.00 a year. $1 00 for six months Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Sealed Lips.

This delightful story, from the pen of Leon de Tinseau, is one of great charm, and is written in a fascinating and vivid style. The unselfishness of a young man who sacrifices his own happiness for that of his friend, stands out in strong colors. Antoine Godefroid, the old musician, fired with the one hope of securing the love of his beautiful pupil, Jennie Sauvel, is entirely lost to his surroundings, and exacts more than would seem to be his due even from so great a debtor as Patrice. The introduction of the mysterious priest and his unexpected accusation, are admirably managed, and so mystify the reader as to create an intense interest in the lovely heroine's future. Mrs. Page has given us an admirable translation, with all the local coloring and original crispness.

The story is No. 19 of the Primrose Series. Price 50 cents. Published by Street & Smith, New York. For sale by all newsdealers and booksellers.

The Millennium in 1899.

Professor Totten, of Yale University, predicts that the Millennium will come early in 1899. His starling contributions to Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper on this subject are attracting world-wide attention. Among the noticeable illustrations in this week's issue of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper are the Princeton College base-ball team; the launching of the cruiser Monterey, at San Francisco; Indian dancers in Arizona; the President's tour to the Pacific; an English May-day party) a magnificent page; glimpses of Honduras; an amateur photographic page, and a dozen other illustrations. Printed in English and German. Price, ten cents.

THE ENEMY IN AMBUSH.

Every one knows that at this season of the year disease lies in ambush, every ready to pounce and prey upon the weak. And any fair-minded physician will tell you that the only safeguard lies in keeping the system thoroughly keyed up by the use (not abuse) of a reliable stimulant. Hundreds of tonics are advertised for this purpose, but experience shows that a pure rye whiskey is the only one to be depended upon. Max Klein's "Silver Age" and "Duquesne" brands are sold under a sworn guarantee of absolute purity; an affidavit accompanies each bottle. "Silver Age" sells for $1.50 and "Duquesne" at $1.25 per full quart bottle. The difference in age makes the difference in price—both brands are warranted to be unadulterated.

You can get Guckenheimer, Finch, Gibson or Overholt from Mr. Klein at $1.00 per quart, or six quarts for $5.00. His stock of wines, brandies, gins, etc., is acknowledged to be the largest and choicest in the state. Goods shipped to all parts of the U. S. Send for catalogue and price list, mentioning this paper. MAX KLEIN, 82 Federal st. Allegheny, Pa.

More Cars and Trains Needed.

It is perfectly surprising what a heavy traffic there is over the Lewisburg railroad on Saturdays. It exceeds the travel on the Bald Eagle and yet on that day the company is lacking in accommodations. There should be another car run on that day as there are always a score or more who are obliged to stand. And another thing; would it not be nice if another train could be put on to leave Bellefonte say at 6 o'clock in the evening? It seems as if there is sufficient passenger traffic to justify the company in doing this.

If you want a position, on salary, expenses paid, see advertisement on page seventh, headed "A Chance to Make Money."

Here's His Record.

The authorities in this place have received a letter from Maj. S. H. Leavitt, adjutant of the Bath, N. Y. Soldiers' and Sailers' Home, in relation to to the man who was arrested in Bellefonte a few days ago for disorderly conduct, who gave his name as Nithingall, and who is now in Fort Ishler. The letter states that Nithingall "was dishonorably discharged on April 1st for repeated drunkenness. On this occasion he assaulted a policeman and later in the evening a member of the home. There was a warrant issued for his arrest but he skipped out, since which time he had not been heard of. He cannot again be admitted to the home. There was nothing wrong with him at that time to indicate that he was out of his mind only his natural cussedness. Signed,

S. H. LEAVITT, Adjt.

High License and Prohibition.

The W. C. T. U. of Milesburg have made arrangements for an entertainment to be held in Boggs' Hall Friday evening at which the question "Resolved That High License is a Stepping Stone to Prohibition," will be discussed by the following learned people: Rev. G. W. Bouse and Miss Amelia Martin, in the affirmative, and Mr. J. C. P. Jones and Mrs. Frances Zimmerman in the negative. There will also be a programme of additional literary exercises which will make the evening entertainment one of interest, profit and pleasure. Bellefonters would do well to go to Milesburg on Friday evening and attend the entertainment. The entertainment is free to all.

Athletic Park

On Friday a number of enthusiastic sportsmen were diligently at work putting in good shape the base ball grounds out in the glass works meadow. Mr. Thomas A. Shoemaker is expected home from Philadelphia today and then he will give a definite answer whether they will rent the grounds to the sporting fraternity for an Athletic Park. If they will the grounds will at once be put in fine shape. A high fence will be put around, a grand stand erected and, when completed, there will not be a better park for its size in the State. It is to be hoped the grounds can be secured.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Peculiar Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No To Itself other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

K. of G. E. Convention.

The annual state convention of the Knights of the Golden Eagle was held in Pottsville last week. The Knights were in session four days and the display made was one of the grandest occasions ever witnessed in Pottsville. Altogether there are now 419 Castles in the state and, although the order is one of the youngest, yet the membership is hardly second to any. Dr. Hoy represented Bellefonte Castle in the convention and the report he gives of the same is highly flattering to the order. He predicts for it, before many years, to be the best secret order in existeece.

A Hint to Tree Planters

"I have planted several thousand trees during the last ten years," says a nurseryman, "and have seldom been called upon to replace one that has died. The success is the result of a very simple but seldom failing precaution. When the tree is planted a piece of wood not less than three inches wide, and high enough to reach the lowest branches, should be driven into the ground just south of the tree. This keeps the sun off it during two-thirds of the day and prevents the sap and bark being burned up before new roots have been formed. Any one adopting this plan will be certain to have success with his trees no matter how poorly they look when first planted."

The Howard Church

All of Friday was taken up by the argument of the Howard Disciple church case before Master Keller. Rev. Ira Mitchell talked for the one side and Rev. W. L. Hayden for the other. The argument was entirely too exhaustive to put in print, The Master has not yet rendered his decision.

MILLINERY — CHALLIES — LACES — FLOUNCES — STYLES IN MAKING.

Millinery to-day is almost an ad libitum affair, and the Egyptian asp a complete failure. Hats may be very large, very small or of medium size—loaded down with trimmings, or a very delicate wreath of violets, or some tiny flower around the front with high cluster at the back; all are equally fashionable. A stylish hat is a very small toque of black lace lightened with loops of gilt ribbon, or of lace intermingled with jet, and in many cases formed of three jet bandeauso, the hair being the crown, and a high bunch of flowers at the back, or two or more single roses on long stems standing upright. Strings of narrow velvet or lace are usually worn with this shape, suitable alike for the youthful and middle aged. A peculiarity of this season's millinery is the large proportion of round hats, worn by elderly persons. The difference in the color and style of trimming, also the use of strings seems to determine to a great extent the age of the wearer. The very few capotes that are now seen has brought about this change—in many cases a most unbecoming one. While lace or split straws, with wide brims twisted into fanciful curves, belong exclusively to young girls, and these are often beautiful extravaganzas: covered with lilacs, or orchids, lace, and high wired loops of ribbon, with slight intermixture of gilt. The convolvulus is a popular flower for this style of hat also morning glories, but for smaller shapes, nothing is so much worn as Parma violets and white and colored lilacs.

NEW CHALLIES

for house wear are in lovely floral patterns on white and light-colored grounds and on black and dark blue for street costumes, although this season, light colors are worn out of doors to a greater extent, than ever before. Some varieties in this class of goods have stripes an inch wide, while others show hair-line stripes, all strewn over with delicate sprigs and bow-knot designs in great variety. Embroidered cashmeres have lost none of their former popularity, and in the dress goods department of the well-known house of Lord & Taylor, great reductions have been made in all classes of dress materials. For black lace dresses, drapery nets will be as popular as ever, ranging in price from $1.25 to $4.50 per yard, and will be trimmed with ribbon or gilt passementerie. Black lace flounces are exceedingly stylish, from seven to eight inches in depth, and are used on plain-colored dresses, also on brilliantly hued China and India silks, with the same lace edging the basque; on the sleeves and gracefully draped around the neck. Flounces showing the bow-knot design are most stylish, and often a plain piece of colored silk is put under the flounce in order to show the pattern. As a rule, flounces of all kinds are headed by a narrow standing ruffle.

STYLES IN MAKING.

The skirts of all cotton materials, either plain or figured will be made in the close-fitting sheath or bell shape, with the addition of one deep flounce, or two and three narrow ones, trimmed with white embroidery in vandyke points, and no matter how pronounced a design may be, embroidery will be seen in combination. The waist will be either the long basque now so fashionable, or a short, round waist, with ends worn under the skirt and frills of embroidery put on bretelle fashion, pointing in sharply at the waist, with high sleeves, and turned back cuff of embroidery. Colored velvet ribbon plays an important part in cotton and light colored shalli costumes, as it imparts character and finish. As an illustration, a white challi strewn with colored floral designs, has a white lace flounce ten inches deep with bows of narrow green velvet placed at intervals on the flounce, and on the corsage the velvet follows the lace bretelles, and is massed high at the shoulder; terminating at the waist in a cluster of long loops. The basque is very short with deep lace around the edge, and bows of velvet at the back. VERONA CLARKE.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Who He Is.

The man who claims to be Richard Nithingoll, of Bath, N. Y., held a conversation with our reporter to-day. He claims that he joined Co. K, 1st Regimental Infantry of New York State in 1862. He was 16 years of age was living at Utica, N. Y., when he joined the army. He was put in Libby prison on Aug. 29th, 1862, during the second battle of Bull Run; he suffered with a great many diseases while there. After being liberated he got disabled and entered the Soldier's Home at Bath, N. Y., in 1866 where he has been ever since. He got a furlough to come to Harrisburg to see if he could find a couple of his old comrades so that he could apply for a pension but in some way got off at Bellefonte. He said "that he wanted to go back to Bath for his time was almost up." He seemed to understand what he said for in several instances he had the thing down fine. Some papers found in his possession corresponded with parts of the story he told. In his possession he has a picture which he claims is his with two other young men who joined at the same time. The authorities here are trying to find out w e this man is from and have written to the Superintendent of the Soldier's Home at Bath.

He Had Important Business.

Last Friday was the day set for an appearance before 'Squire Foster, in this place, of the defendant in a certain cause. Said defendant lives in Pine Grove and on Friday morning the 'Squire received a letter from him asking a continuance of the case until to-morrow, as he had "important business" in Bellefonte that day and could thus kill two birds with one stone. The 'Squire granted the continuance after which it suddenly flitted across his mind that the "important business" referred to was Wallace's show.

Thirty-two Children in Fifteen Years.

A. M. Thomas, a native of Decatur county, Georgia, who lives just across the State line in Gadsden county, Florida, is thirty-five years old and is the father of thirty-two children, all of whom are living. Mr. Thomas' wife, who is also a native of Decatur county, is three years younger than he. Fifteen years ago they were married. In 20 months they found themselves the parents of 4 bright and beautiful children. With almost unvarying regularity ever since the family has been increased by the addition sometimes of twins, sometimes of triplets, until the number has reached 32. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are a thrifty, happy and contented couple, and their children are as fine looking a set as one often sees.

Chasing Deer With Dogs.

Ira C. Hall, constable of this place, arrested five men at Lock Haven last week, on warrants sworn out by Enos Moyer, game warden, on the charge of chasing and killing deer with dogs. The men were Jackson Welsh, who lives at Queen's run, Robert F. Smith of Lockport, K. D. Smith and F. Brown of Dunnstown. The offence with which they are charged is said to have been committed at the head of Rattlesnake Run, back of Whetham, on November 24. The warrant was issued by Alderman Harris of Lock Haven, before whom the accused entered bail for their appearance before Justice of the Peace J. J. Wetzel in Renovo on May 21, for a hearing.—Renovo News.

The Veterans Growing Old.

It is given out by the State commandery that nearly seven hundred members of the Grand Army in Pennsylvania, died during the year 1890. This is the largest number of deaths ever recorded in one year, and shows plainly that the "boys" are growing old and are by the thousands entering that period when the hold on life is slender. The average age of the veterans to-day is somewhere about fifty years. Very many are over seventy years of age, and the youngest are well up in the forties.

A consideration of these facts lends an additional and mournful interest to the preparations now going on for another observance of Memorial Day. The Grim Reaper, which must come to us all, has gone about the State, and in one short year since last the flowers bloomed a whole regiment has fallen. Seven hundred dead! There were few battles of the war that witnessed greater slaughter. The number of fatalities in an engagement would mean a total of seven thousand killed, wounded and missing, and if the relation may be said to keep up in times of peace, there have been many of the boys wounded in health the past year and who are already in the ranks of those who shall fall before many years go by. As age creeps on, the boys come closer together; the Post meetings grow in interest and the camp fires burn more brightly. A large percentage have entered the fatal decade, for it is the years between fifty and sixty that are the most trying on the adult human frame.

John, have you seen that woman lately?

John, in actonishment, What woman? That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wines. Just see her in another column and read about it; the wines are found by chemists to be adsolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Board of Health in Large Cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

Whistling Boys.

If ever in the course of human events heaven blesses me with an heir of the small boy class, I shall teach him to whistle early in his young career and encourage him to warble merrily away throughout the sunshine and the shade of youth and age. I never see a youngster with his hands shoved down in his pants pockets, his head thrown back, his cheeks swelled out like a pair of bellows, and his puckered lips piping a jolly tune, that I don't set that boy down as an innocent-hearted lad who wouldn't do anything more harmful than rob a watermelon patch or such. He wouldn't tell a malicious lie or do a cowardly trick.

These are the works of the sly youngster with the averted eye and the soft tread, who is afraid to whistle lest he makes a noise and attract attention. The whistling boy never makes the footpad or the cut-throat, though he may never be President. I can't help having my suspicions about a man who never learned to whistle in his youth. In nine cases out of ten he has a falsetto voice and bad digestion, and his ideas on many points of morality are questionable. —Louisville Post.

New Postal Cards.

The new style of postal cards have been printed at the factory at Birmingham, Conn. One is pearl gray, slightly smaller than the present size. The cut and vignette are in blue ink, and the likeness of General Grant is brought out admirably. The other style is much larger than the present card and the same color. The vignette is the same as on the pearl gray, but the ink is dark. The samples have been sent to the Post-office department. They are considered improvements on the old style.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease "Comsumption," is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing and may prove a blessing, will please address REV. EDWARD A. WILTON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

THIS country will not probably half-mast its flags on account of Rudini's last communication severing all diplomatic relations with us. He is like the boy at a debating club, who having been worsted in every debate, declines to continue the discussion.

WILFULL and malicious lies always go home to roost, and the indications now are that the outrageous falsehoods told by the democrats about the McKinley tariff act will do that party a great deal more harm in 1892 than it did them good in 1890.

Lying Dispatches.

There have been more untruthful dispatches sent out from Bellefonte during the past fortnight in regard to forest fires than should emanate from any community in a year. For instance, one was sent away stating that "the entire valley along Buffalo Run was devastated" whereas not one foot of land was burned over in that valley. Another dispatch appeared in the Press early in the week stating that "the people of Bellefonte, instead of going to church on Sunday, were obliged to fight the angry flames, which entirely surrounded the town, in order to keep their homes from being destroyed." Every resident in Bellefonte knows how much truth there was in that. On last Sunday there was not a flame, outside a cooking stove, within ten miles of Bellefonte. Such dispatches are malicious and it is a wonder that any respectable newspaper would tolerate them.

For What It is Worth.

Lock Haven Express.

The small force of men that commenced work last Monday grading for a railroad near the old Washington Furnace in Nittany Valley were at work again this morning. One team and wagon is also used in the work. The men began near the furnace in the narrows leading to Cherry Run, and have about 150 yards of road bed graded. The people of that vicinity are greatly excited over the prospects of a railroad being built in that section. The boss of the work states that 500 Italian laborers will be on the line in a short time. A corps of engineers have been making surveys in that locality for the past two weeks. Nobody seems to know what company is doing the work.

THE throbs of increasing prosperity now being felt in all branches of industry and business, in every section of the country, are sharp pains to the gouty old democratic hulk, and they tell the story in indisputable language of which party was right about the McKinley tariff act. The ruin predicted by the democrats last fall is a long way off, unless that party should by accident obtain the control of the Government in all its branches and carry out its ruinous ideas.

A HERO REINSTATED.

Naval Cadet Kruse Who was Expelled for Refusing to Betray His Comrades

ANNAPOLIS, MAY 14.—A. J. Cruse, of Bellefonte, Pa., who was expelled from the Naval Academy last Summer, has been readmitted through appointment by Congressman Kribbs and thereby hangs a tale. Cadet Cruse is a victim of a high sense of personal honor in conflict with the cast-iron rule of naval discipline and, although he comes out a victor, he has sacrificed two years of promotion.

Last August Cruse, who was then in his second year at Annapolis, while returning to his room one evening met some of his classmates who were severely hazing a new student. Cruse himself took no part in the hazing. The unfortunate victim was handled so roughly that he was rendered unfit for any of his class duties and thus the affair was brought to the attention of the faculty.

Cruse refused to betray his classmates. As the participants themselves failed to admit their guilt, the faculty at length suspended Cruse for a short period, believing that on reflection he would give the desired information rather than incur expulsion, with which he was threatened should he persist in remaining silent.

At the expiration of his term of suspension Cruse was again summoned before the faculty, and again he refused to give the desired information. It was a trying ordeal for Cruse—a fight between expulsion and dishonor in the eyes of the world, and reinstatement and disgrace in the sight of his fellows. The president of the faculty was kind but stern.

"It is the first duty of a soldier or sailor to obey his superiors," he said. "As an officer of the United States Navy, I ask you to tell us the names of the cadets who participated in the hazing. If you refuse to obey orders, it will be the duty of the faculty to order your expulsion."

"I recognize the fact that it is my duty to obey the orders of my superiors," replied Cruse, who was deathly pale, in a trembling voice, "but I am not a spy. There is a duty which I owe to my honor. Unless the guilty ones confess voluntarily I shall suffer expulsion, for I still refuse to betray them."

The expulsion of Cruse left a vacancy which it was the duty of Congressman Kribbs to fill by appointment. Mr. Kribbs was notified a few days ago by the Secretary of the Navy that if he desired to do so he might send in the name of A. J. Cruse as his appointee, and that the faculty of Annapolis would receive him and treat him as a new student entering the first year.

Congressman Kribbs followed the suggestion and Cruse will again take his entrance examination as though he had never before been to the academy. This means that while Cruse will again be admitted to the academy, the last two years are lost to him in academic rank, and he will be obliged to enter the first year, notwithstanding that he has once passed the examination of the grade.

"We are Only Seven."

A Centre county writer says that there are only seven persons confined in the Bellefonte jail at present and these for slight offences. This may, indeed, be true, for all the big criminals have broken out and run away —L. H. Democrat.

In the Spring

The feeling of lassitude peculiar to the season begins to be felt. The average stock of vitality has been pretty thoroughly exhausted in carrying its possessor through the rigors and changes of the trying winter, and as the more genial season approaches and the strain upon the system relaxes a feeling of prostration, more or less pronounced in degree and duration, is the natural and inevitable result. During the existence of this feeling of lassitude and depression, business cares and exertions seem almost impossible of endurance, and even the lightest duties and responsibilities of life are regarded as a burden to be shirked or disregarded to the greatest possible extent.

If You are Wise

To devise some preparation to counteract this tired feeling and restore the system to something like a normal condition has been the endeavor of many people more or less skilled in medical science, and countless concoctions under the general title of "spring medicine" have been placed upon the market, had a brief boon and then been lost sight of, to be succeeded by some other similar preparation. The principal ingredient in most of the spring "bitters," "tonics," etc., alcohol, the effect of which upon the human system has been sufficiently dwelt upon through various public mediums to render any extended reference to the same unnecessary here. The temporary feeling of strength and exhilleration produced by this active agent is as certainly followed by a greater degree of depression, while the results of continued indulgence are a permanent impairment of the vital organs—the heart, kidneys, liver and brain.

The facts of the case are that you have been living upon meat and other fatty substances to a greater extent than at any other time of the year; the pores of the skin have been closed, and upon the kidneys and liver have devolved all the work of keeping the system clear. But now summer is at hand, and these organs cannot keep up the drain. The pores of the skin must be open, else disease will step in and throw you upon a bed of sickness. If the pores be but partly open, then you are languid, lazy and ill at ease. You want a spring cleaning process within yourself, and then you will be filled with vigor and a zest for work and business. You can have all accomplished by the use of

THEY TRADED HORSES.

A BAUM AND WM. SHIRK INDULGE IN A FRIENDLY "SWAP."

On Tuesday evening William Shirk, the butcher, traded horses with liveryman A. Baum. Shirk's horse was worth $150 while the exact value of Baum's seems to be in dispute. At any rate Mr. Shirk discovered on Wednesday morning that he had no use for the horse he got from Baum, as he had the heaves too bad to be of any account so far as work was concerned, and as his stock of bologna was alreaady quite large, he thought he would trade back. Mr. Baum seemed to think differently, for when Shirk went for his horse he found that Baum had gone visiting and had driven that identical animal.

By dint of considerable inquiry he discovered that the animal had been driven down Nittany valley. Accordingly early Thursday morning Shirk goes before Lawyer Clement Dale and swears out a writ of replevin, and places the same in the hands of Sheriff Ishler for the recovery of the animal. Sheriff Ishler and Harry Shaw drove down Nittany valley as far as Nittany Hall but there learned that the horse had not been brought down that far but had been taken over the mountain at Hublersburg. Accordingly they returned to that place and started over the mountain but when almost to the top they discovered the horse grazing in a field and the only person around seemed to be an old lady who, on learning that one of her visitors was the Sheriff, was frightened almost out of her wits and begged them to take the horse away and welcome if they would only go and leave her in peace.

As the writ of replevin said nothing about the recovery of an aged lady Shaw and the Sheriff took Shirk's horse and, leaving Baum's horse there, started on their return. Coming back they met young Baum who demanded the horse but was not so acommodated. On arriving in Bellefonte the animal was driven to Dale's office and that gentleman advised driving it to the stable with all dispatch and locking it in. The horse was driven to Shirk's stable on Bishop street and Clement Dale, Esq, ran across the diamond and through the alley, leaving only a cloud of dust as a trail in the rear. It was hastily taken into the stable and the door was padlocked and nailed. No sooner had this been done, however, than Baum, with his attorney, Jack Dale, each vieing with the other in the use of the emphatic language, appeared on the scene only to find that they were to late. As possession is nine points of the law and as Shirk has got the horse, Baum's only alternative is to keep quiet or bring suit, just which he will do remains to be seen. In the meantime Shirk has put a chain and padlock on every limb of his animal, doubly locked the door and sleeps with a double-barrel shot gun under his pillow.

A Goodly Surprise.

About eighty people of Georges valley treated one of their citizens to a very pleasant surprise one evening last week. Mr. Dunkle, of that section had been on the sick list for several weeks and unable to work, when the generous and charitable citizens took upon themselves the supplying of a few necessaries. Mrs. Samuel Harter, who is a very estimable lady, had the party in hand and through her earnest and noble efforts, it was a perfect success. Goods to the amount of over fifty dollars were presented to Mr. Dunkle's family, who no doubt feel grateful to the donators for their benevolence.—Centre Reporter.

Not Exactly Perfect

Considerable complaint is being heard in some portions of the town because all mail matter that comes to this place on the 10.30 a. m. train west is allowed to lay in the post office until the afternoon delivery and the mail arriving here on the 5.20 p. m. train west is not taken out until the first trip next morning. This certainly is not very convenient for anybody who may be subscribers to a daily paper that arrives here on those trains, or to those who receive important letters that way.

The Boys Get Drunk

A gentleman told in this office this morning of a gang of boys who now regularly make it their business to go behind a certain hotel in Bellefonte where the empty beer kegs are piled awaiting shipment and drain each keg into tin cans. In this way they manage to collect from a quart to as much as a gallon of the very dregs of the vile stuff and, with it in their possession, make their way to Halfmoon hill where they smoke and drink until they are all intoxicated. On Tuesday a half a dozen boys, ranging in age from twelve to sixteen, were found in that condition and on Wednesday three of them were found, one so drunk he was entirely insensible.

Now here is the question: Who is to blame? The parents of the children; the children themselves; the hotel-keeper for putting his beer kegs in such a public place or the law which allows him to do it? Whichever it may be, it is certainly a condition of things that demands looking into by somebody and strenuous measures taken to promptly stop this sort of infantile drunken rowdyism which is a disgrace to any town or community.

Through the Weary Hours

Of many a night, made doubly long by its protracted agony, the rheumatic sufferer tosses to and fro on his sleepless couch, vainly praying for that rest which only comes by fits and starts. His malady is one which ordinary medicines too often fail to relieve, but there is ample evidence to prove that the efficient blood depurent, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, affords the rheumatic a reliable means of relief. Check the malady in its incipient stages, when the first premonitary twinges come on, with this agreeable medicine, and avoid years of torture. Whatever be the rational of active influence of the Bitters upon this malady, certain it is that no evidence relating to its effect is more direct and positive than that which relates to its action in case of rheumatism. Like all sterling remedies, however, it deserves a protracted, systematic trial, and should not be abandoned because not at once remedial. It is equally efficacious in dyspepsia, indigestion and kindred diseases.

Serves Him Right.

The residence of Hugh Lindsay, editor of the Huntingdon News, was entered by burglars one night recently and his assets, in the shape of a rhubarb pie, were carried off. Subscribers who are back on that paper should come to the rescue of brother Lindsay and assist him on his feet again. Even a pie is a serious loss to a newspaper man.—Clearfield Republican.

Serves him right. A newspaper man has no business indulging in such expensive luxuries, and the only wonder to us is how he come to get it.

At this season of the year when malaria lurks in the air, and bad colds not an unfrequent visitor, we long for a quick and effective remedy. There is scarcely a home without a sufferer from some of the many ills the flesh is heir to. A stimulant is after the intermediator. It is quick and effective. It brings relief and saves doctors bills. We can reccommend Mr. Max Klein for anything in the liquor line. His silver age Rye at $1.50 per quart is the best whiskey in the market. He will sell a 5 yr Pennsylvania Rye Whiskey six years old, at 1.00 for each quart or 5 for $5.00. Send for his price list and catalogue and mention this paper. Two Tammany democrats who have been proven guilty of having accepted bribes while holding municipal offices, and who only escaped well merited punishment through legal technicalities, have just been appointed to lucrative and responsible positions under the city government of New York, and yet we find otherwise intelligent men short sighted enough to advocate the turning of the National Government over to Tammany Hall, for that is just what the election of a democratic President next year would mean.

Three Curious Items

There is not a mile of railway in Brown county, Ind., nor within six miles of it. Nashville, the county seat, has 400 inhabitants, and but one brick structure, the court house. The jail is built of logs. The county has not sent anyone to the penitentiary for several years, and there is not a saloon within its limits.

While an Indianapolis citizen was riding on a street car in that city the break-handle slipped from the driver's grasp and struck a pistol in the driver's breast pocket. A bullet from the weapon killed the passenger instantly. His wife has recovered $5,000 damages from the car company.

Chester has a baby which is now three months old, and his exact weight is 32 ounces avoirdupois. The baby has never worn any clothes but is kept carefully wrapped up in cotton; It blinks its wee eyes and crows and when it gets angry its cry is no louder than the weak wail of a kitten.

Feminine Fancies

Never wear a tea gown at a hotel table. It is suitable only in your own house. Elderly ladies do not take kindly to small bonnets which seem to be lacking in dignity, but the days of large bonnets are passed, and the fastidious matron must content herself with one of the medium shapes, which if well chosen, will prove both becoming and stylish. Fine double width light weight English serges have in a degree taken the place of both summer cloth and flannel. These serges are indispensable for the seaside as they do not shrink under the influence of even the strongest salt sea air. They are as protective as flannel, while being much lighter and are in every way excellent materials for all purposes.

IN MEMORIAM

HARRIET MARY REDDY,

Born in England, died in Milesburg, Pa., Wednesday, April 13th, at her beautiful Cottage Home, where during her life she received and enjoyed the society composed of the best of the people of that borough and of Bellefonte — who were pleased to assist in relieving her from loneliness since her brother's decease. She had so secured the friendship of her lady acquaintances that in all her illness she was cared for by warm, affectionate hearts and with soft and willing hands. They were with her in her life and at her death. Serenity and peace rested on her countenance as she lay, in her beautiful casket, on and around which flowers had been tastefully arranged Now she is gone from them but still lives in their hearts while her body "lies silent in the grave" in the beautiful Catholic cemetery at Bellefonte. Her spirit is with God—her "record" is on high, and brother Charles is with her.

Miss Reddy was born of well to do parents and at their death was left with a competency. She could have lived in ease and enjoyed the comforts of life without having much to do with its troubles. She was a Christian woman. The love of Christ was imbedded in her heart and along side there burned the love of brother. "Oh, the length and breadth, the heighth and depth of a sister's love." My brother is alone in America. I have a mission; I must be at my brother's side and share with him my competency and my company. She did not hesitate but across the sea she came—at that time quite a venture. She found her brother Charles and was never separated from him till death severed the union. They came to Bellefonte in the early sixties. They were indeed a matchless couple; each striving to make the other happy. The current of life with them was an unbroken stream. Their daily walk and life was at all times exemplary. They lived and loved together.

Demorest's.

How many really greaceful people do you know? Are you graceful yourself? Do you know the proper and most graceful way to go up and down stairs, to walk, to stand, to sit, to bow etc.? If not, be wise, and immediately read the article on "Health, Grace, Beauty: Delsarte Philosophy made Practical," published (With 33 illustration) in the June number of that thoroughly wide-awake periodical, DEMOREST'S FAMILY MAGAZINE, and you will want to begin practicing the exercises almost before you finish the reading.

But it would be necessary to give the whole "Contents" in order to tell the interesting things contained in the June number, and every number is quite up to the present high standard, and this valuable Family Magazine is published at only $2.00 a year, by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

—The Pittsburg Dispatch has lately donned a full dress suit of new type which, though somewhat "bold face" about the headlines, yet makes its figure present a neat and trim as well as handsome appearance. The Dispatch is long ago out of swaddling's clothes and its costume now is just decollete enough to excite the admiration of all its male acquaintances and the envy of all its lady friends. Its circulation is numerous and rapidly increasing. the thousands of homes it daily visits being a sure testimonial of its wide popularity.

Law for Supervisors.

The Supervisors of each and every township of this Commonwealth are by law required to maintain at the intersection of all public roads in their district, pointers, or index boards, the same to be affixed to posts, if trees are not convenient, for pointing out the name of the town, village or place to which such roads lead and the distance thereto in miles. Neglect to do so subjects the supervisor to a penalty of $10.

No man is a bankrupt who meets all of his obligations and that is what the United States Treasury is doing. When a single national obligation of any sort goes to protest then the people will be ready to believe that a deficit exists, but such a thing will never happen while we have a republican administration.

Only Temperance Bitters Known

VINEGAR BITTERS

GRANDEST - MODERN - DISCOVER

Triumph of Pharmacy

The only true practical

ELIXIR OF LIFE AND HEALTH.

is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant. Profane compounds, made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the disease for which they are taken.

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and above all, a life-giving stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE, far surpassing alcohol in any shape as a tonic it might be called

LIQUID LIFE, since it stimulates, invigorates and regulates digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion, respiration, and all the functions whereby life is maintained—we literally take in vitality in spoonfuls,

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, and no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known

CALIFORNIA, if remarkable for nothing else, would be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers, rheumatism, catarrh, consumption, neuralgia, headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, dyspepsia, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c. &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. The discovery was partly accidental but the present

PERFECT BITTERS IS THE RESULT OF SCIENCE.

Millions of sufferers have gratefully and gladly endorsed, during the past quarter of a century the wonderful success of this

PHENOMENAL TONIC OF THE WORLD.

In order to meet every probable demand, two formulas of the same ingredients are now put up.

THE OLD STYLE IS STRONGER, SLIGHTLY BITTER, AND MORE CATHARTIC.

THE NEW STYLE PLEASANT TO THE TASTE, AND EXPRESSLY ADAPTED TO DELICATE WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

REMEMBER,

There is no disease of low vitality, debility of functions, or nervous prostration for which.

VINEGAR BITTERS IS NOT CURATIVE, and its singular power over the lower organisms renders it the implacable foe of.

THE DEADLY MICROBE AND OMNIPRESENT BACTERIA

in malarial diseases, cholera, consumption, internal diseases, &c., and so great is its power as a germicide that it is an

UNEQUALLED VERMIFUGE.

A book could be written of its virtues, and another of testimonials, but it is only necessary to remember its general action upon the liver, blood, brain and nerves, to realize its use in a majority of the ills that flesh is heir to, and that no family should ever be without a bottle of —Some people who are all the time talking about the same know no more about good taste or bad taste, breach of etiquette, bad manners, etc., than a polar bear does about the telephone. Their comprehension is entirely too narrow to reach beyond the proprieties that belong to the class in which they should rightfully circulate, liars, hypocrites and thieves.

—Israel Erb, the last of the Kintzler murderers, died in the Eastern Penitentiary, week before last. Ettinger, and Uriah and Ellen Moyer.

—Mr. A. Sternburg, who returned to Bellefonte early last week, says that on his trip to Seattle and return he traveled through eight states, a distance of almost seven thousand miles, was two weeks in Seattle and was away only from the 29th of March to the 26th of April—just about four weeks. Quite a journey that, but Mr. Sternberg says what he saw was well worth the cost of the trip.

—On Thursday afternoon a man who wore the blue created quite an excitement up town by persisting in an attempt to fight Dr. Harris. He was taken in charge by Policeman Garis and "cooped." From papers in his possession it was learned that the man's name was McPherson and he was believed to be from the Erie Soldier's home. It was also thought that the man was not altogether compos mentis.

—'Gus Smith, the noted Bellefonte tinner so long in the employ of McFarlane's hard ware store there, is now working for Mr. Baker in this city, having been here several days. Mr. Smith rather likes Lock Haven and thinks he will move his family down, if work continues as brisk as now. It will be a real novelty to have one family in Lock Haven by the name of Smith.—L. H. Democrat.

—The "me too" glass-eyed gosling of the up town Owl, who has for some time been nursed on political corruption, on Tuesday exhausted his own intellect and sucked dry the little mental capacity of his score or more unpaid minions, in a death struggle to write a pen picture of himself and, in addition to eighteen columns of boiler plate, which this paper long ago discarded, he publishes this double-distilled bile and calls it news. Great leather! What profundity!

From Bad to Worse

The ordinary treatment of contagious blood poisoning is to drive one poison from the system by introducing another. The result, in most cases, has been that which usually follows a leap from the frying-pan into the fire. To put it mildly, mercurial and other mineral poisonings have disadvantages which are hardly less serious than contagious blood poison. In either case the system is wrecked; and yet there is no reason why humanity should continue to suffer. It is the office of S. S. S. to cure contagious blood poisoning. For that disease the medicine is surely a specific. And it is also its office to cure mercurial and other mineral poisoning. In short, S. S. S. is the great blood purifier. It destroys the germs of the contagious disease, and expels from the system all forms of mineral poisoning. It restores health and strength to the sufferer.

Important Letters Lost.

Some time ago several letters were mailed in the Bellefonte post office and each of these letters contained checks for large sums of money. One was a cashier's check and two others checks of two of Bellefonte's most prominent business men. From the time those letters were put into the post office nothing has been heard of them. Wonder who could tell what become of the same?

And while we are on the letter business we will just remark that the Bellefonte post office was never so carelessly conducted as it has been since Fiedler is postmaster. Letters will be put in wrong pouches, or tied up in wrong packages and sent hundreds of miles out of the way, and thus important correspondence is seriously interfered with. Quite a number of such instances have been brought to our notice in which the officials acknowledged their error.

Wedded.

At the parsonage of Christ's Second Lutheran church, No. 1112 Seventh avenue, Altoona, Friday afternoon, Mr. Ira C. Elenberger and Miss Mary M. Hastings were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. J. F. Hartman. The young couple are from Gatesburg, Centre county. After a bridal tour they will return home for a short stay and then locate in Kentucky, where Mr. Elenberger has been elected principal of an academy. We wish them great success and much joy in life.

In Memory of Col. McFarlane.

The death of Col. Robert McFarlane, on Monday noon, was one of the most sudden that has occurred in Bellefonte for a long time. In the morning he complained of not feeling well and sometime during the forenoon had gone to his room in the Crider building. About twelve o'clock some-one going in discovered Mr. McFarlane sitting on a chair with his head leaning on the bureau, and apparently very sick. Word was at once sent to some of the neighboring gentlemen and a number soon gathered only to see the man breathe his last, death coming suddenly, doubtless caused by heart disease, from which the gentleman had suffered for some time.

Mr. McFarlane was aged about 64 years. He was born in Harris twp., and was the son of Mr. James McFarlane, William, of Boalsburg, being the only other child. Robert lived a very quiet, unostentatious life until the breaking out of the war when he raised the Pennsvalley company, known as Company H, of the 148th regiment, and was one of the first to join the column of three months' men and march to the front. At the expiration of three months the company re-enlisted and before the close of Mr. McFarlane's war record he was made Lieutenant Colonel for valiant service on the field.

In 1868 he joined Mr. Moses Thompson and two sons in starting a bank at Lemont which was known as the banking firm of Thompson, McFarlane & Co. In 1867 he was nominated by the republicans for the legislature but was beaten at the polls by Hon. P. G. Meek. Ever since his return from the war he has lived in Bellefonte where he has been associated with numerous enterprises, but always in a quiet way. At the time of his death he was the leading member in McFarlane's hardware store. His brother, William, just happened to be in Bellefonte on Monday but failed to see his brother until he was dead.

The body was prepared for burial and was taken in charge by his old comrades, and this morning was taken on the Lemont train to Boalsburg where the funeral will take place to-morrow morning at ten o'clock from the residence of Mr. Wm. McFarlane. Interment in the Boalsburg cemetery, The G. A. R. has charge of everything.

Was It an Incendiary?

The court house officials, as well as the insurance agents, are somewhat alarmed to day over a discovery made this morning which looked as if an attempt had been made to burn the court house. At the left entrance to the court room was found a partly burned paper box with sawdust in it and a hole about four inches square burned in the carpet. Whether it was the act of an incendiary or whether one or more persons had been loafing there and threw a lighted match or cigar stump down, which burned the carpet before it was discovered, is hard to tell. Either theory is plausible. Whichever it may be, however, it only demonstrates the importance of putting the court house in a condition that it may be locked every night and on Sundays so that persons can't gain access to the lower corridor or the stairways.

—Mr. E. I. Walker has been creating quite a furore of excitement in Lock Haven by telling them down there that men had already commenced work on a new railroad through Nittany Valley. Evidently the citizens of Lock Haven don't know Mr. Walker very well.

In advanced age the declining powers are wonderfully refreshed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It really does "make the weak strong."

In addition to his work on the Journal, he daily sends communications to several Harrisburg and Altoona daily papers.

Mr. John L. Dunlap has been appointed chairman to get up a club of "fantastics" for the fourth of July parade. There could have been no better selection made in Bellefonte than this. John is a good organizer and there is not the least doubt but that the "fantastics" will be the drawing card in the parade that day.

—The Owl, in its Tuesday's issue, applies to the NEWS editor the appellation of "Sissy," a term that has been applied to one of the editors of that paper ever since he has had anything to do with journalism in Bellefonte. Who does not know "Sissy" Bailey? It won't do by a long shot. The Owl can't trade off that name so easily for it fits Bailey like a duck's foot in the mud. Everybody who knows him can easily see that all that is needed to make a "sissy" complete is female wearing apparel.
